Fighting Grows Sharper

SAIGON (AP) — The allied commands reported the heaviest fighting involving American troops along the Demilitarized Zone in nearly five months and new clashes near the Cambodian border today.

Reports in Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, said Hanoi radio had broadcast a threat that the city would be hit tonight or Sunday with one of the bloodiest attacks ever.

U.S. monitors in Saigon said they had not heard the broadcast, but South Vietnamese forces in and around Da Nang were reported on full alert. Officials said U.S. forces had "heightened their vigilance."

South Vietnamese sources said they had reports that sapper-commandos would attempt to attack government compounds in the city and bridges and railroads on the outskirts.

The fighting along the demilitarized zone centered about four miles southwest of Con Thien and a mile south of the 17th Parallel that divides North and South Vietnam. Field reports said six Americans were killed and 40 Americans wounded in an eight-hour battle Friday.

This was the heaviest fighting in the region since last Nov. 14, when 197 North Vietnamese troops and 14 Americans were killed in a day-long clash, the U.S. Command said.

South Vietnamese armored cavalry troops clashed with North Vietnamese forces along the foot of Nui Co To, also called Superstition Mountain, in the Seven Mountains region of Chau Doc province near the Cambodian border.

The government forces, backed by allied bombers and artillery, claimed killing 25 enemy soldiers. South Vietnamese losses were 16 killed and 35 wounded, field reports said.

Elsewhere across South Vietnam, a four-day-old North Vietnamese and Viet Cong offensive appeared to be tapering off, at least temporarily. But informed sources said intelligence reports indicated it would continue until Tuesday and that there would be another upsurge of attacks before then.

Eighty-eight American and 319 South Vietnamese troops have been reported killed since Wednesday, the day the offensive began, and 469 U.S. and 931 government soldiers have been reported wounded. Allied forces have claimed killing 976 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

The U.S. Command reported 36 enemy rocket and mortar attacks during the 24-hour period that ended at 8 a.m. Saturday, about a 75 per cent drop from the 130 attacks reported Wednesday. But the level of shelling activity was still far above average. Enemy rocket and mortar attacks last month averaged only a dozen per day.

U.S. spokesmen also reported today that three more American helicopters had been shot down in South Vietnam.

Fishing Gear, Player Stolen

Bill Taylor, 331 S. Scott, reported to police yesterday items were stolen from his boat parked in front of his house.

Fishing equipment and boat gear comprised most of the missing items valued at $173.

Wayne Eaton, Morehouse, reported that his car was broken into while he was at the Malco Theatre yesterday. A stereo tape player valued at $84 was stolen.

Warm Days Speer Door to Door Sales

This is the time of year when door-to-door salesmen invade residential neighborhoods with magazine subscriptions, encyclopedias, and other items for sale.

City Clerk Ronald Lee said a solicitor's license costs $22.50. "If the solicitor is selling magazines, the company must have a solicitor's license. If the company doesn't have such a license, individual salesmen can buy a peddler's license at the city collector's office for $2 per

Cane Harvest in Electrical Cuba Far Behind Inspector Takes $26

MIAMI (AP) — Cuba's sugar harvest is running so far behind schedule that they're betting on this side of the sugarcane curtain that Fidel Castro won't reach the 10 million tons on which he says rides the honor of his revolution.

The five millionth ton of Castro's dollar crop, scheduled for harvest March 17, was reached nine days late, Havana radio reported. Castro blamed rains and other factors. The tropical rain season still lies ahead.

The sixth million was scheduled for harvest Friday. Economists noted that more than 50,000 tons daily would have been needed to make the goal even if the halfway mark had been on target. Daily production, announced in Cuban broadcasts monitored here, have been below 45,000. Wednesday's, one of the higher ones, was announced at 44,887 tons, placing the total harvest at 5,236,882 tons.

"The best month-March-is gone," said the Economic research Bureau, operated by exile economists.

The bureau, headed by Rafael Rivas Vasquez, added: "In sugar circles the possibility of Cuba reaching its target of 10 million tons is not even discussed at this point. Everyone seems to have accepted the fact that the 10-million-ton goal is out of the question."

Rash of School Tax Hikes Seen If Bill Fails

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The president of the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation predicted today if the income tax bill fails next Tuesday, property owners will see a rash of school elections to increase local school taxes.

C. R. Johnston, Farm Bureau president, said in a statement "after a long history of property owners unfairly carrying the tax load for school operations, property owners now have a chance to shift the taxation load more equitably to all Missourians through increasing income taxes."

Johnston said citizens want better opportunities for education, better roads, an end to pollution and increased welfare grants.

If these additional services are to be provided," he said, "they don't come for nothing. Missouri Farm Bureau believes the proposed shift from property taxes to income taxes is the most equitable way to spread the cost of these increased services across the greatest number of citizens able to pay."

Lee said that most of the peddlers make their rounds in the summer, a large number being college students. He said they usually come two or three times a year.

Lee added: "No solicitors have made application for a license this year. We had between 30 and forty last year."

Police check anyone they see soliciting door-to-door to make sure they have a permit

Diplomatic Clash Develops From Latin Kidnaping

GUATEMALA (AP) — Latin America's latest political kidnaping has erupted into an open diplomatic clash, with the Guatemalan government refusing to meet the kidnappers' demands and West Germany insisting that it give in.

Wilhelm Hopper, the Bonn Foreign Ministry chief of personnel, met with President Julio Cesar Mendez today to try to arrange the release of Count Karl von Sprei, the West German ambassador abducted Tuesday by four leftist terrorists. Hopper flew here from Bonn Friday night.

The kidnappers, members of the anti-government Rebel Armed Forces (FAR), increased their ransom demand Friday to freedom for 22 prisoners plus payment of $700,000. The government rejected the demand, as it had turned down a previous demand for the release of 16 prisoners.

The explanation for both rejections was the same: that most of the prisoners in question have been tried and convicted of felonies and that freeing them would mean executive interference in the judicial process and would be unconstitutional.

An official statement also said the government "has made sufficient demonstrations of its democratic policies on previous occasions and cannot be subjected to conditions imposed by the kidnappers."

The West German government formally protested the decision and demanded that Guatemala meet the kidnappers' demands.

Foreign Minister Alberto Fuentes Mohr and U.S. Labor Attaché Sean M. Holly were kidnapped in Guatemala last month, and political prisoners were freed in exchange for their release. However, those prisoners had not been tried.

Of the 22 prisoners whose release Von Sprei's kidnappers have demanded, only five have not yet been tried. Those five are charged with kidnaping Holly and Fuentes Mohr.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Eventually most people get what they deserve, but many a man has a kick coming that never reaches him.

GET OUT THE VOTE

In the last election, one third of the nation's eligible citizens failed to vote and thereby carry out the first obligation that every U.S. citizen owes to himself and his country. Between now and election day, every voter should make sure that he is registered and take the time to familiarize himself with candidates and the point of view they represent.

In this year's general election, the American people will select a President and thousands of other office holders including U.S. Senators and Representatives, governors and state legislators. These officials will make and administer the laws of the land under which we all must live. They will decide on the role of government in our lives, the amount of taxes we must pay, the wars we must fight and how many of our young men must serve in which branches of the armed forces and for how long. Every voter owes it to himself to take part in selecting the best men and women to carry out these vital functions.

If you expect to be away from home on election day, Tuesday, April 7th, arrange to cast an absentee ballot. It is estimated absentee voting accounts for from one per cent to six per cent of the total vote. This can mean victory or defeat for the candidates of your choice. This November, know the issues and the people — then VOTE.

A nickel goes a long way — you carry it around for weeks before you find something it will buy.

JUNKIE VS. ANTHROPOLOGIST

The MOUNT VERNON (Ohio) NEWS discovered an interesting rebuttal to recent testimony by left-leaning Dr. Margaret Mead advocating the legalizing of marijuana. The Ohio newspaper found "the other side" in a prison newspaper published by convicts at the Chillicothe Correction Institute. The opposing view was written by an inmate, Herb Watts, Mr. Watts wrote:

"The only qualifications I have is the fact that I have been an addict for 10 years and a drug user for longer than I care to mention. I am not trained in Psychology, Psychiatry, Chemistry or Medicine. I am not a social worker or a journalist. I am just a junky with something to say.

"Dr. Mead told a Senate Panel that marijuana should be legalized and that 16 should be the minimum age for its use. She said it was her considered opinion that marijuana is not harmful.

"Unfortunately, some people are physically and temperamentally susceptible, so that they do not stop with the first experiment, and thus continue smoking, drinking, or taking drugs. This can lead to the three phases of abuse: Tolerance, Habituation, Addiction.

"Dr. Mead is telling us 'Pot' is not addictive! Why, then, during the current marijuana famine are all of our little grass smokers so frantic?

"If they can take it or leave it alone, why this crazy scramble for substitutes? And pretty far out they are, too, from glue and gasoline fumes to catnip.

"The U.S. and Mexico finally cracked down on the highly profitable smuggling of marijuana. Almost overnight young pot heads found themselves with nothing to turn to. Cases on the docket prove without a doubt that some of these kids took up 'hash.' Parents, if you hear your kids talking about 'hash' don't be confused into thinking it's the corned beef variety. They are talking about Hashish—the kind smoked in Oriental horror tales. Half pound bricks are flooding the country, to keep our pot-starved youth from climbing the walls. Now, instead of pot parties, the kids throw hash sessions."

Junkie Watts concluded: "To legalize the use of marijuana would be a cardinal sin and an unjust burden for immature American youth."

We believe that young people would be far wiser if they would listen to Herb Watts, and not to Margaret Mead. And although Mr. Watts says he is not a journalist, we hope that as soon as he gets the drug monkey off his back, he will apply for a newspaper writing job.

It is not work that hurts people: It's worry.

Let us have a crusade for courtesy. Let us begin it by practicing this virtue carefully, consistently, intelligently, continuously, ourselves! Let us help to make decent, considerate, courteous driving "the thing."

By a Wisker. In Mombasa, Kenya, Africa, a team of Sikhs, whose religion requires them to wear full beards, won a tug-of-war contest, solemnly accepted the prize: individual bowls of saving soap.

A merchant who sees buyers pass his store and enter another can understand how a mother feels when all the marriageable young men spend their evenings next door.

A publication by the Standard Oil Company of California observed that according to a study made by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States the federal government is spending tax money a lot faster than a taxpayer can earn it or send it in. For example, the chamber observes, if it takes an individual an hour to fill out his tax return — and most people struggle with it longer than that — the government will spend $22 million in the same amount of time or "before you even get the envelope stamped." The calculation is based on the federal budget for fiscal 1970 which proposed outlays of $192.9 billion — $100 billion more than 1960. To make the spending more comprehensible, the Chamber calculates it at $22.02 million per hour or $367,000 per minute.

ANOTHER FULBRIGHT FLAP (1)

If you are not inclined to become easily dizzy, take a trip on this rhetorical merry-go-round.

First Cycle: January 15, 1970: Dr. Fred Schwarz noted in his Christian Anti-Communism Crusade Newsletter:

"Senator Fulbright, who told me eighteen months ago that he did not care if all the countries in South-East Asia became Communist..."

"These words appear in an article in the SYDNEY MORNING HERALD, Australia, Tuesday, December 30, 1969. The article is written by Denis Warner, one of Australia's most prestigious journalists and a leading expert on Vietnam."

Second Cycle: February 24, 1970: Senator Fulbright wrote to the Sydney Morning Herald:

"Sir, - I wish to state unequivocally, with no reservations whatever, that this statement is false. I have never at any time, to anyone, stated that I did not care if all or any countries in South-East Asia became Communist."

Third Cycle: Denis Warner, in a reply published in the Sydney Morning Herald, Feb. 24, 1970: "There is no question that Senator Fulbright made the statement he now denies. I saw him by appointment in his office in the U.S. Senate. Certainly, in a long career of reporting international affairs, I have never talked to a senior public official in any country who was so ready to denounce his own country's policies to a foreign newspaperman. He was not concerned whether all of South-East Asia became Communist...In a dispatch sent from Washington after the interview...I described Senator Fulbright's remarks as 'blunt, direct, and, I can find no other word for it, irresponsible.' I have not changed my opinion since."

Thus we go round the merry-go-round. Out of it, only a few things are clear: first, the quotations cited by Dr. Schwarz were meticulously accurate. Dr. Schwarz was also right in declaring: "I am not accusing Senator Fulbright of being logical. I do state that indifference to communist advance anywhere contributes to communist danger everywhere. The communist conquest of Cuba threatens all Latin America, and the communist conquest of South-East Asia would threaten India, Japan, and Australia."

As to the diametrically opposed statements by Senator Fulbright and Denis Warner, both cannot be true. One or the other must be false. It is important that the American people know the truth of the matter which we will consider in further editorial comment.

It is not only better to behave well, but it takes up less time.

The Citizen's Public Expenditure Survey, Inc., New York, noted: "Government is big business, and it is getting bigger as present government programs are expanded and new programs added. Are you keeping your elected representatives informed of your views on the expansions and additions for which you pay in taxes?"

A woman doesn't think a man cares for children if he refuses to let them impose on him.

We oppose a lobby that drives through a state legislature a bill to establish "liquor outlets for the motoring public" as happened at the Marine Legislature 1969.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — This is the story of one man's fight to save his weekend retreat — a small wooded spot unspoiled by concrete and brick — from a giant corporation that wanted to buy him out.

He is John Hawkinson, a 40-year-old, white-haired outdoorsman, who 20 years ago bought two acres of wilderness on the scenic Indiana Dunes near Lake Michigan. All he and his wife asked was to be left in peace in their rustic cabin beside a placid pond.

They make their living by writing and illustrating children's books about nature. Often, they would bring Boy Scouts from the Chicago slums to the retreat to teach them about nature.

Ten, in 1962, the Bethlehem Steel Company selected this picturesque area for a steel plant and began acquiring the surrounding property. Although Hawkinson was offered as much as $45,000 for his land, he didn't want to give it up.

After nearly everyone in the area sold out, the company published the plans for its new plant. Hawkinson's property appeared as part of the steel complex. It remained, nevertheless, as an island surrounded by corporate territory.

THE BIG BOYS from Bethlehem, annoyed over this private little Eden in their midst, sought to take away Hawkinson's access road. They brought pressure upon the county commissioners who granted the company permission to take over first one end, then the other end of the road.

Unintimidated, Hawkinson stormed into court, where he was assured that Bethlehem would never deny him access to his property. But the road became an obstacle course.

First, the state highway department, in widening Indiana

Route 12, eliminated the intersection where he turned off. He overcame this by bouncing over the dirt onto the access road.

The railroad tracks to the steel plant cross the road, and Hawkinson often found his way blocked by boxcars. Guy wires were also anchored in the asphalt of the road.

He still manages to reach his property, as he puts it, by "sneaking in." But his friends, being less persistent, no longer visit him on weekends. Some friends who tried to drop by were stopped by armed company guards.

Throughout the ordeal, the steel company continued to make generous offers for the property. Then his wife fell ill with cancer.

"It may have been a coincidence," Hawkinson recalls ruefully, "but the day my wife went to the hospital, they offered me $25,000 and gave me 48 hours to make up my mind to sell."

Although he needed the money for his wife's medical care, he resented what he considered to be an unfair attempt to put the squeeze on him.

John Hawkinson, one of the last of the rugged individualists, is still holding out.

Note: A Bethlehem spokesman, invited to give the company's version of the controversy, refused to comment.

TRICIA NIXON'S SCARE

One of those crank bomb threats was received the other day by Washington's fashionable Shoreham Hotel. The management treated the threat as a hoax until President Nixon's daughter, Tricia, walked into the hotel with a group of friends.

Taking no chances, the management tipped off Tricia's Secret Service bodyguards who quietly escorted her out. The hotel's less privileged guests were allowed to remain inside, however, unaware of the bomb scare.

The White House, meanwhile, intends to use the FBI to crack down on the bombings. Explained presidential aide John Erlichman privately to congressional leaders: "The prime thrust is to prevent these things from happening. We expect a greater role for the FBI."

FLAG SNATCHING
Flag waving may be passe among some college youths, but flag snatching has become the latest fad at American University in the Washington outskirts.

A student ring, operating in broad daylight, has been heisting flags right off government poles. They got away with the state flags of Illinois, Iowa and Utah, for example, from the Smithsonian Institution.

But their prize trophy is a 9-by-15 foot Department of Transportation flag, which they solemnly hauled down from the pole in front of the busy departmental headquarters.

Note: The students also have swiped other souvenirs, such as the Seal of Virginia off Senator Harry Byrd's Senate office door.

WHY HUMPHREY LOST

Hubert Humphrey, who mimed becoming President by less than one per cent of the vote, discussed his defeat recently with a Texas oilman who had voted against him.

"He told me," Humphrey recounts, "that he just couldn't vote for me. First, he said, he was afraid that if I went into the White House, the oil depletion allowance would be cut. Second, he was afraid that interest rates would go up. Third, he was afraid that the conflict in Vietnam would continue. Fourth, he feared that Humphrey in the White House would mean a higher crime rate."

"I thanked him and told him I understood why he didn't pull my lever."

Then there was the middle-aged businessman who took his spouse to Paris. After traipsing with her from one maison du couture to another, he begged for a day off to rest and got it. With the wife gone shopping again, he went to the Ritz Bar and picked up a luscious Parisienne. They got on well until the question of money came up. She wanted 50 American dollars; he offered 10. They couldn't get together on the price, so they didn't get together. That evening he escorted his wife to one of the nicer restaurants on the Rue de Rivoli and there he spotted his gorgeous babe of the afternoon seated at a table near the door.

"See, Monsieur?" she said, as they passed her. "Look what you got for your lousy 10 bucks." It was a large, lavish dinner party and many important dignitaries and members of society were there. "I suppose I mustn't offer you wine," said the hostess to the guest of honor seated on her right. "Aren't you the chairman of the Temperance League?" "Oh, no," replied the guest with a smile. "I'm the head of the Anti-Vice League."

"Oh, of course," said the embarrassed hostess. "I knew there was something I shouldn't offer you."

Then there were the two nuns driving along the highway

BELEM, Brazil — The ancient DC-4 climbs out of the morning fog covering beautiful Bogota, slithers through a pass in the high Andes, and almost immediately drops to the floor of the great Colombian llano, 8,000 feet below the capital.

At the airstrip in the town of Villavicencio the plane, freed now of the problem of altitude, is gasped for the long trip down the greatest river of the world. Southward for 100 miles we pass over broad estancias dotted with white cattle, and here is the Rio Guaviare, a rope of chocolate twisting northeastward toward the Orinoco and beyond it the rain forest to put all others to shame.

The roads all vanish. Neither settlements nor houses nor clearing disturbs the green carpet. In its quarter of a million square miles the Colombian province of Amazonas contains about 9,000 people.

THREE HOURS from take-off the Amazon appears, already cream-colored with the debris of the cordilleras. At the point where Colombia, Peru and Brazil meet we sweep down over the small town of Leticia, over the old subseas that is Columbia's navy on the river, over a decayed three-deck steamer and onto the rough brick runway.

The length of the Amazon is 3,915 miles, 200 miles shorter than the Nile, but equivalent to the distance from New York to Rome.

Its drainage area, nearly twice as large as any other river system, stretches over 25 of the earth's 180 degrees of latitude. Its discharge at the mouth is estimated at 4.2 million cubic feet a second — seven times that of the Mississippi. It carries about one-fifth of the water that runs off the earth's surface, and ocean freighters can navigate it 2,300 miles to Iquitos, Peru.

FROM LETICIA to Manaus, Brazil, is 650 nautical miles. We dodge thunderheads. Great rains walk the jungle floor. There are tall white trees and flowering trees and palms, all jostling in an outrageous tangle. Beneath us unfolds a world of quinine, cacao, casava, suruparilla, ipeac, guava, calabash, coca and rubber. It is a world of howler monkeys, agouti, tapirs and peccaries.

Here come the huge tributaries out of the Central Andes and the Matto Grosso — the Jutai, the Jurua; and down from the northwest the Japura, which the Colombians call the Caqueta.

The country is a mass of oxbow lakes, of bright green sloughs, of swamps as large as many American states. Tefe, the first recognizable town, is two hours out of Leticia — a cluster of yellow and blue buildings on a bluff and its riverfront dotted with small sampans, covered with tin or thatched canopies.

The shadows are long when the clear, black waters of the Rio Negro come down from the north and we glide into Manaus. MANAUS, capital of the world's greatest wilderness. Manaus of the 300,000. Manaus of the fabulous baroque opera house, the busted rubber boom. Manaus, nearly a thousand miles by water from the sea, with its fine white sand beach on Ponta Negra. When will the jaded tourists of the world who have "been everywhere" discover it?

Manaus may become great again. To attract trade and population the Brazilian government has made it a free port. Travelers must have their baggage inspected coming in and going out. Money invested in the State of Amazonas gets special income tax exemptions. Every effort is being made to lure Brazilians from the pauperized and overcrowded northeast coast.

IT IS ANOTHER day, another four air hours to Belem. East of Santarem we encounter a 300-mile thunderstorm, a rare and wild display of the heat machine that characterizes South America's tropics and affects the weather everywhere.

The river broadens, swollen by the Madeira, the Uatuma, the Tapajós and the Xingu. And finally out of the early evening, beyond the junction of the Para and the Toncantins, come the lights of Belem, the rivermouth port of 60,000 people.

WHAT IS the future of the Amazon basin? Demographers, looking at this lush rain forest, 200 miles wide at the Atlantic and fanning out to 1,200 miles at the base of the mountains, have seen it as profitable home for 150 or 200 million of earth's people.

The agronomists and foresters are more cautious. Above the flood plain the soil is leached by the incessant rains, and shallow-rooted crops do poorly. It needs many fertilizers — all expensive. Although there are limitless exotic woods there are no pure stands. Louis Agassiz once counted 115 wood varieties in an area half a mile square. Some of the best timber sinks. Logging roads are a dream.

BUT MAN'S genius is broad and the pressure for food and raw materials will be fierce. One of my hosts in Belem looked out across the cocoa-colored waters and said: "This is the trans-Missouri of 1800 and the Canada and South Africa of 1900. The 21st century will belong to the Amazon!"

and ran out of gas. They got out and walked back to the nearest filling station wanting to get just enough gas to get started and drive back to be filled up. All the station attendant could find to carry the gas in was an old bed pan from a junk pile. So they put in what they could in the bed pan and carried it back to the car. While pouring it in the tank, along came two Methodist ministers who saw what the nuns were doing. Said one minister to the other. "And I thought we had faith."

More people are reading than ever.

The research of universities and private agencies show that television, while putting some magazine out of business, has ironically added more time to reading.

Some magazines have folded and others are struggling for survival, not because of lack of readership, but often because of too many readers. A magazine with several million subscribers loses a fortune with every issue printed if it is supported by vast advertising investments.

Unfortunately, the great national magazines were supported by the same advertisers who have turned to television. These advertisers are mainly the sellers of patent medicines, soda-pop, detergents, cosmetics, cigarettes, women's undergarments, cereals, soups, deodorants, and corporate images.

The advertising of such items is not based on rational appeals. It is designed to implant a name in the unconscious mind of the consumer. The idea is that a more or less indifferent consumer will ask for a brand name which automatically comes to mind. The advertising agencies, in love with the glamor or television, and confused by the muddled theories of writers such as Marshall McLuhan, have diverted impressionistic advertising from magazines to the electronic media.

However, on the local level, where the final buying decision is made, glamor and theory are no substitute for hard fact and reason. Thus, newspaper advertising, which calls an aspirin and aspirin at any price, remains the best basic contact between seller and consumer.

Salesmen's Quotas
"Four out of five salesmen should hit their quotas," says the Gallagher Report. "It is important not to set quotas too high; it discourages salesmen from trying. A quota should reflect individual measurement based on a man's ability, recent performance, and his production during the same period the year before."

"The company should permit salesmen to question their quotas. It may be advisable in some cases to let him set his own quota. Schering Corporation Chairman, Francis Brown, found that salesmen give themselves higher quotas than the company does."

Then there was the lusty swan who left his pond during the mating season, stopped the first human he saw and demanded, "Take me to your Leda."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Speedy F. Lee Bailey: Air controllers nerve-wracked the public, ignoring Government's swift airport reforms.

Kansas City, Mo.: — And so I've flown across half this continent — a sort of unsentimental journey between the Wright Bros. and F. Lee Bailey who appears to believe that Orville and Wilbur did it all for him.

This 30-year-old Bailey, who pilots his own jet plane and collects minor items such as sloop, speed-cars, motorcycles and at least one union, has given this flying nation the jitters. And by turning "labor leader" before he can be elected "Executive Director" of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization (PATCO) at its next convention in Las Vegas, April 18-19, he has offered himself up for imprisonment.

And it may all be a futile, albeit dramatic, gesture.

It's mostly hot-rod stuff and amateur dramatics. There is a speed car culture in PATCO's dispatch of a letter to Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird saying that on Wednesday, March 25, thousands of air controllers will be sick but PATCO was willing to guide military craft.

Do not believe there is much to the strain and stress and so called governmental cruelty arguments put forward by the inexperienced PATCO leaders — especially do I think so after a long conversation in Washington with the intense John Volpe, Secretary of Transportation. Like the dervishlike F. Lee Bailey, Secretary Volpe is from Boston.

There was just no need to shakele airports, wrack the nerves of airplane crews and suffer unto little children and even college students the frustration of not getting home for Easter.

Look at the record, as Mr. Volpe himself has done and verified. PATCO, which struck illegally and is but one of several air controllers' units seeking exclusively in jurisdiction over all federal aviation employment, has screamed about the tension of overtime work.

In fact, we have very substantially reduced the amount of overtime. Secretary Volpe told me shortly after leaving the White House, "So in January the average amount of overtime per week was five and a half hours — or an average 45-hour week reduced from the 60 hours of some years ago. We do have a few centers where they work a 48-hour week — but the average is 45; and we have the statistics."

Of the 350 airport towers only 35 now are on overtime. Of the 21 air control centers which pass planes on from one area to another as compared with towers which talk planes in, only 12 or 21 district controls are under overtime.

And the controllers are not only Federal white-collar employees who are paid time and a half.

Why then are they screaming about tension? We're all tense — and an average 45-hour week at their pay scales isn't bad even for addowers of F. Lee Bailey.

They start as GS13 grade men at $15,812 and in 10 steps go up to $20,555 annually. With overtime they get upwards of $23,000.

Soon they'll be protesting the loss of that overtime. The sturdy 61-year-old John Volpe, a veteran at labor relations because of years in the contracting business, is putting manpower into the pipeline as swiftly as possible.

Until fiscal 1967 little was done. Then Congress gave up a few dollars. Finally in fiscal 1969 Lyndon Johnson asked for 2,800 more air controllers. Then Mr. Nixon moved this to 3,800. And in the fiscal 1970 budget there is money for 2,265 more tower men — or a total of 6,065. Mind you, this is almost a 100 per cent increase in two years in air controllers. With the total previous fiscal periods, the total new manpower is some 9,000 men.

As Mr. Volpe says, and as any contractor knows, and as the PATCO knows, it takes time to turn apprentices into journeymen — especially when we're talking of men in whose hands there are the lives of men, women and kids, business or holiday bound. At first, the men must be trained, then they are put in low traffic areas and finally in high density centers.

The men who struck with their silly sick-out know this.

So they talk about automation and ancient equipment. Well, there is a $15 billion bill in the Congress, the Aviation Expansion Act of 1970. For this some $250 million will be spent by the Federal Government on the air navigation system. Mr. Volpe tells me there will be even more money for more air traffic controllers.

"Just the other day we flew a plane from Philadelphia to Los Angeles controlled entirely automatically and by computer from the ground," said the Secretary of Transportation. "The pilots need only to talk about altitude with the center towers. And soon that will be eliminated."

"Modernization was one of the toughest problems when we arrived here at Transportation and FAA. For some years the Department had been trying to get increased funds for the Navigation air system. We're gearing now to full automation and to make the air controller task less a pressure-cooking job. The machine will do the work. It will eliminate the drudgery, the use of markers, and the writing of memos and passing of paper from one controller to another."

That will be by 1974. We can't all move as swiftly as F. Lee Bailey, his own jet, sports cars, motorcycle or sloop.

Nor can there be instant unionism. If PATCO wants to feud with the FAA, if some controllers, as one of their spokesmen told me, want "to strike until hell freezes over and (FAA Administrator) Shaffer is in his grave politically." If they want exclusivity in bargaining and are battling the other unions — why take it all out on a public already nerve wracked?

Prematurely Gray Hair Can Become An Asset To 16-year-old Girl

Dear Ann Landers: I realize the chances that I will print my letter are one in a million but it's worth the try. I'm a 16-year-old girl whose hair is turning gray. Premature gray runs in our family and there's nothing I can do about it.

The kids at school have begun to notice and I get teased a little. Although I laugh it off, it bothers me.

Can you suggest a rinse that will not look artificial? My natural hair color is dark brown. Thank you. —Old Before My Time

Dear O.B.: You can go to a beauty shop and get some professional counsel. The decision should be made by an operator who can look at your hair and advise you on the basis of color, texture and style.

If I were you, though, I'd leave it alone. A high school girl with prematurely gray hair will be a standout in any crowd.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to say something to that big mouth who is obviously a man-hater from way back. True, girls don't get themselves pregnant but most of them know what causes pregnancy and it is their responsibility to avoid it.

The letter made it plain that the boy did his darndest to get rid of the girl but she chased him shamelessly and finally wore him down. I know how predatory females operate because a certain sex-bomb has been chasing me all over the campus for two years.

I've never asked her for a date. I've never given her a phone call, in fact, I don't give her the time of day. But she turns up wherever I happen to be, greet me with hugs and kisses, slobbers all over my face, and I can't get rid of her. Once she was waiting for me outside the men's john.

Not all males are strong. Ann, I can understand how a guy can be taken advantage of if he doesn't have good sense and will power. Just sign me —Hate Aggressive Females

Dear H.A.F.: What do you have that's so special? My readers will surely be asking me. What shall I tell them? I've never heard of a man being raped by a woman but if you don't reduce the animal magnetism you might be the first. Have you considered a chastity belt?

Dear Ann Landers: How can I get rid of a creep who won't give up? I'm a 16-year-old girl who knows lots of answers but not this one. To make matters worse my mom thinks this kid is great.

Whenever he calls on the phone Mom is so friendly it encourages him. Every time Mom and I get into a discussion about this pest we end up in a fight. She keeps wanting to know why I don't like him. I tell her it is because he is so sweet and attentive he makes me sick to my stomach. She says this is a crazy reason. Do you know what I mean? Please put it into words for me. I'm —Stymied

Dear Sty: Yeah, I know what you mean. No challenge. Some girls can't stand a guy who is decent and considerate. They find life much more exciting when they are kicked around. I hope for your sake that you change your tune.

How far should a teen-age couple go? Can necking be safe? When does it become too hot to handle? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking And Petting—What Are The Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Alcindor Has Bucks Dreaming

Associated Press Sports Writer
Lew Alcindor's up to his old tricks again.

He's got the Milwaukee Bucks dreaming of championships just as UCLA did during the years the amazing athlete played there...just as he did at Power Memorial Academy in New York.

In other words, Lew Alcindor became the first National Basketball Association team—oops, pardon the slip—The Milwaukee Bucks became the first team to advance to a divisional championship series in the NBA Friday night when they beat the Philadelphia 76ers 115-106.

Alcindor scored 46 points. It boosted his total for five playoff games to 131—an average just a shade over 26 points.

Chicago shot down the Atlanta Hawks, who were trying to make it four straight, in the night's other NBA playoff action, the Bulls winning 131-120. Atlanta holds a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Western Division semifinals.

Los Angeles, behind 2-1, plays at Phoenix in tonight's only NBA action. The Los Angeles Phoenix survivor takes on the Atlanta-Chicago series winner for the Western Division title.

Milwaukee now plays either New York or Baltimore, which trails the Knicks 3-2 with the Eastern Division series resuming Sunday at Baltimore.

It was an uphill fight for Milwaukee, however. The 76ers had an 85-82 advantage after the first three periods. The Bucks didn't get their first lead of the second half until Alcindor made good on a three-point play to put Milwaukee ahead 82-80 in the fourth period.

Bill Cunningham and Wally Jones kept the 76ers in contention until the waning moments. Cunningham scored 28 and Jones 25.

Chicago, with Chet Walker and Clem Haskins providing the scoring punch, breezed past Atlanta in the first period and the Hawks could never get the upper hand, although they led briefly after intermission.

Dick Motta, Chicago's coach, isn't ready to just hand the series to the Hawks in the fifth game at Atlanta Sunday.

Walker scored 39 points to lead Chicago while Haskins contributed 29. Joe Caldwell was high for the Hawks with 38 points.

Press Picks Orioles, Cubs

Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Six months and 1,344 major league baseball games from now, it will all boil down to the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs in the 1969 World Series, were no better than third in the National League East behind both Chicago and St. Louis.

A nationwide panel of some 200 sports editors and broadcasters polled by The Associated Press, picked those four teams to win their respective division titles and battle it out in the post-season playoffs next fall. The Orioles and Cubs were picked to advance to the World Series. The winner of the fall classic? We'll leave that one to you.

The voters relegated three of last year's division winners to also-ran status, picking only the Orioles to repeat the American League East romp. The world champion New York Mets, who beat Baltimore in five games in the 1969 World Series, were no better than third in the National League East behind both Chicago and St. Louis.

Atlanta, winners in the NL West last year, also were placed third in their division with the Reds and San Francisco Giants ahead of them. If the Giants finish second, as the poll predicted they will, it would be their fifth consecutive runner-up finish.

Here's the way the four division races looked to the voters:

National League East—1, Chicago; 2, St. Louis; 3, New York; 4, Pittsburgh; 5, Philadelphia; 6, Montreal.

National League West—1, Cincinnati; 2, San Francisco; 3, Atlanta; 4, Houston; 5, Los Angeles; 6, San Diego.

American League East—1, Baltimore; 2, Boston; 3, New York; 4, Detroit; 5, Washington; 6, Cleveland.

American League West—1, Oakland; 2, Minnesota; 3, California; 4, Chicago; 5, Kansas City; 6, Milwaukee.

The closest race, according to the poll, will be in the National League East. Chicago barely beat St. Louis, with 66 of 180 voters picking the Cubs first and 60 favoring the Cards. Only 34 thought the Mets could repeat.

In the NL West, Cincinnati had 62 first place votes to 40 for the Giants. Baltimore dominated AL East voting with 130 first place votes to 36 for Boston. Oakland was favored by 106 voters in the AL West with 76 picking Minnesota.

Baseball Season To Open With White House Reliever

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

A White House relief pitcher will launch baseball's 1970 season Monday at Washington while Canada's young major league entry helps ring in the last Crosley Field opener at Cincinnati, where it all began.

Neither President Nixon nor Vice President Agnew will be on hand for the Washington inaugural, which pits the Detroit Tigers, without Denny McLain, against Ted Williams' ambitious Senators.

Mickey Lolich is set to pitch for the Tigers in the absence of McLain, under suspension until July 1 for his 1967 gambling activities. Dick Bosman, American ERA king last year, will be the Washington starter.

David Eisenhower, Nixon's former President, is a candidate to handle the traditional firstball assignment.

At Cincinnati, where the Reds' forerunners began playing professionally in 1869, Jim Merritt will be on the mound for the home club against Joe Sparda and the Montreal Expos in the other traditional opening day game. The Reds are scheduled to shift from ancient Crosley Field to a new stadium in time to host the July 14 All-Star Game.

The spotlight shifts Tuesday to Milwaukee, new home of the ill-fated Seattle Pilots, which entertains California in its opener while all other clubs except St. Louis also swing into action. The Cardinals play their first game Wednesday at

In Tuesday's other AL games, league titlist Baltimore is at Cleveland, Minnesota at Chicago, Boston at New York, Oakland at Kansas City and Detroit at Washington.

The world champion New York Mets visit Pittsburgh, Atlanta is at San Diego, Chicago at Philadelphia, Houston at San Francisco and Cincinnati at Los Angeles in National League play.

The Orioles have been tabbed solid 9-to-5 favorites by Las Vegas bookmakers to repeat in the AL and St. Louis is the 7-2 choice in the NL, followed by the Mets and San Francisco, at 9-2.

While President Nixon has put in a bullpen call for the Washington opener, Baltimore's Dave McNally, Boston's Gary Peters and Los Angeles' Claude Osteen appeared geared for distance as their clubs' opening day pitchers.

McNally, a 20-game winner for the Orioles last season, Peters, obtained by Boston in a winter trade with the Yankees, and Osteen, another 20-victory man, were the standouts among half a dozen hurlers who worked Friday exhibition games in final tuneups for Tuesday starting assignments.

The Orioles bowed to Montreal 3-2 at Arlington, Tex., despite McNally's three-hit, seven inning stint. The Red Sox rallied for three ninth inning runs to top Cincinnati 3-1 at Tampa, Fla., as Peters yielded just two hits and stretched his scoreless string to 312-3 innings before being nicked for an unearned run in the eighth.

Osteen, who worked six innings, and Jim Brewer combined to limit California to three singles in the first eight innings, leading the Dodgers to a 7-2 victory over the Angels at Los Angeles.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Cubs outskouted the White Sox 13-12 in a 35-hit donnybrook punctuated with three grand slam homers — by the Cubs' J.C. Martin and the Sox' Buddy Bradford and Syd O'Brien; St. Louis trimmed Eddie Stanky's University of South Alabama team 9-2 with the help of B. Aaron's homer, keyed by Hank Aaron's homer, spilled Oakland 4-2.

Doug Rader drove in four runs with a double and homer as Houston downed the Yankees 9-5. San Francisco edged Milwaukee 6-5, on Hal Lanier's eighth inning infield hit, Pittsburgh blanked Columbus of the International League 5-0 and Cleveland bowed to Wichita of the American Association 7-5.

Talk of constructing another baseball park for the city league program has been going on for about a month, during which time not one word has been said about repairing the three that have been in use during the past seasons.

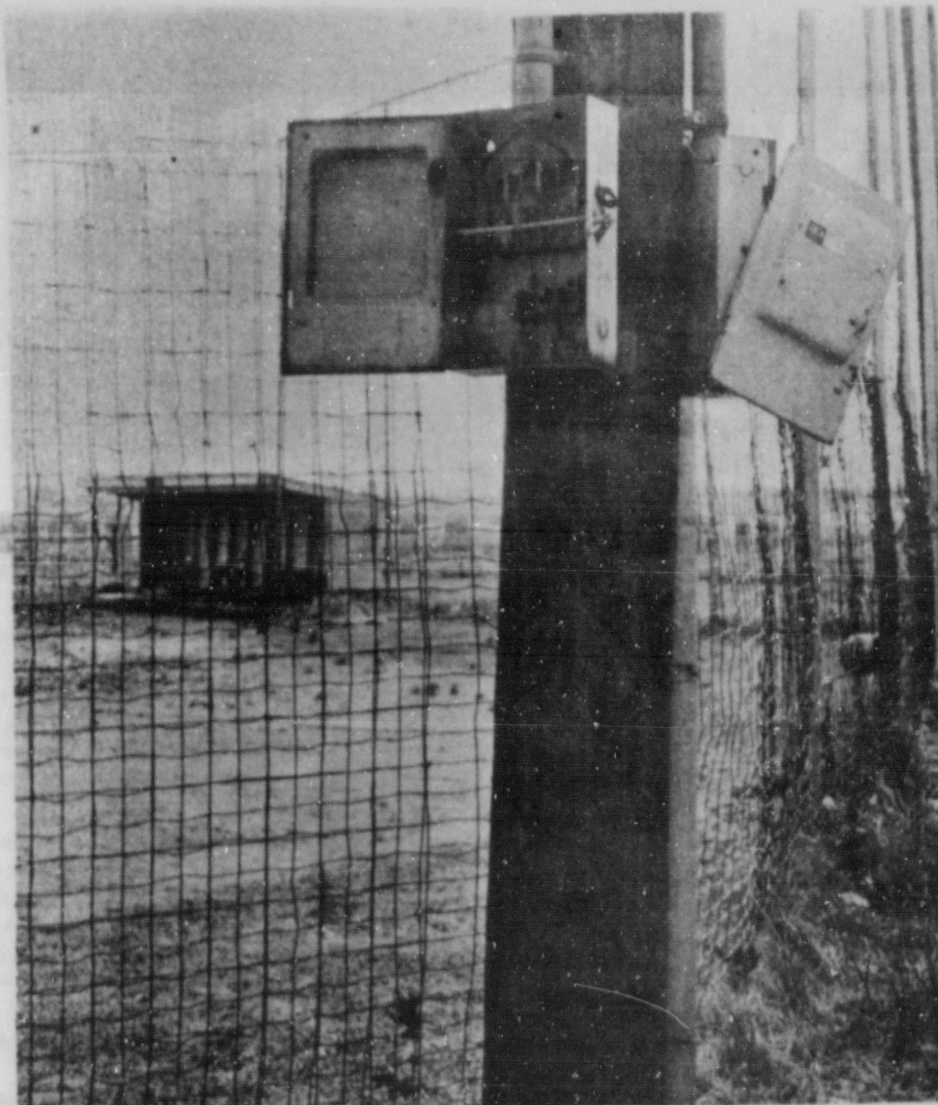

On this page are pictures of each of the three fields Farris, Puckett and V.F.W., which show need of repair.

It has been pointed out in one of the recent baseball meetings that the school had land available for expansion of the city baseball program, but would be hesitant to cooperate with present leaders who have let parks run down to their present condition.

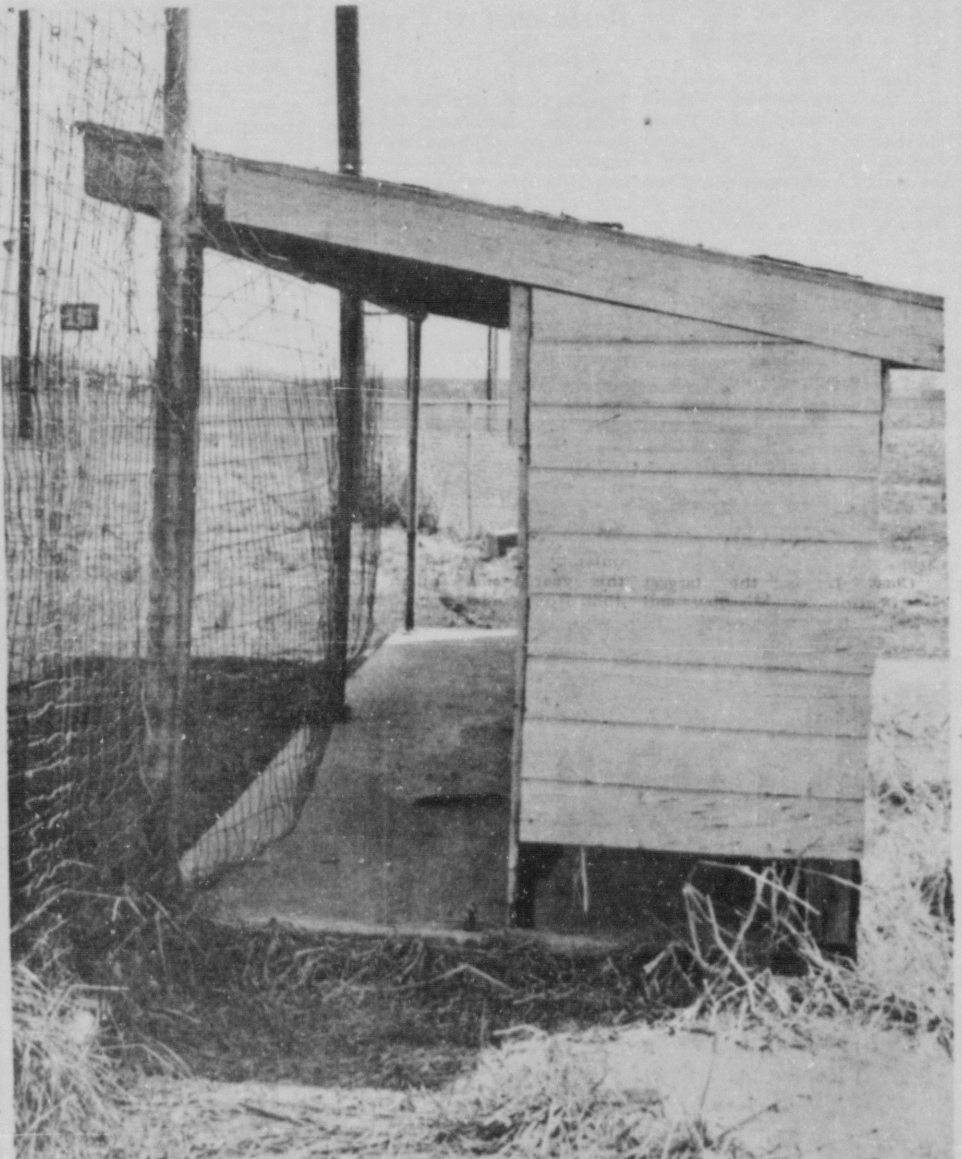

The city leagues are headed by commissioners, who handle the money and administration on a free gratis basis.

At the latest meeting of baseball heads, it was learned that Little League commissioner Don Miller and Chief of Police Arthur Bruce got into a heated argument over the present conditions of the field. Miller noted that his league had $3,500 in the bank, after which Bruce made the statement that the account wouldn't be that high if fields had been kept up during the past two seasons.

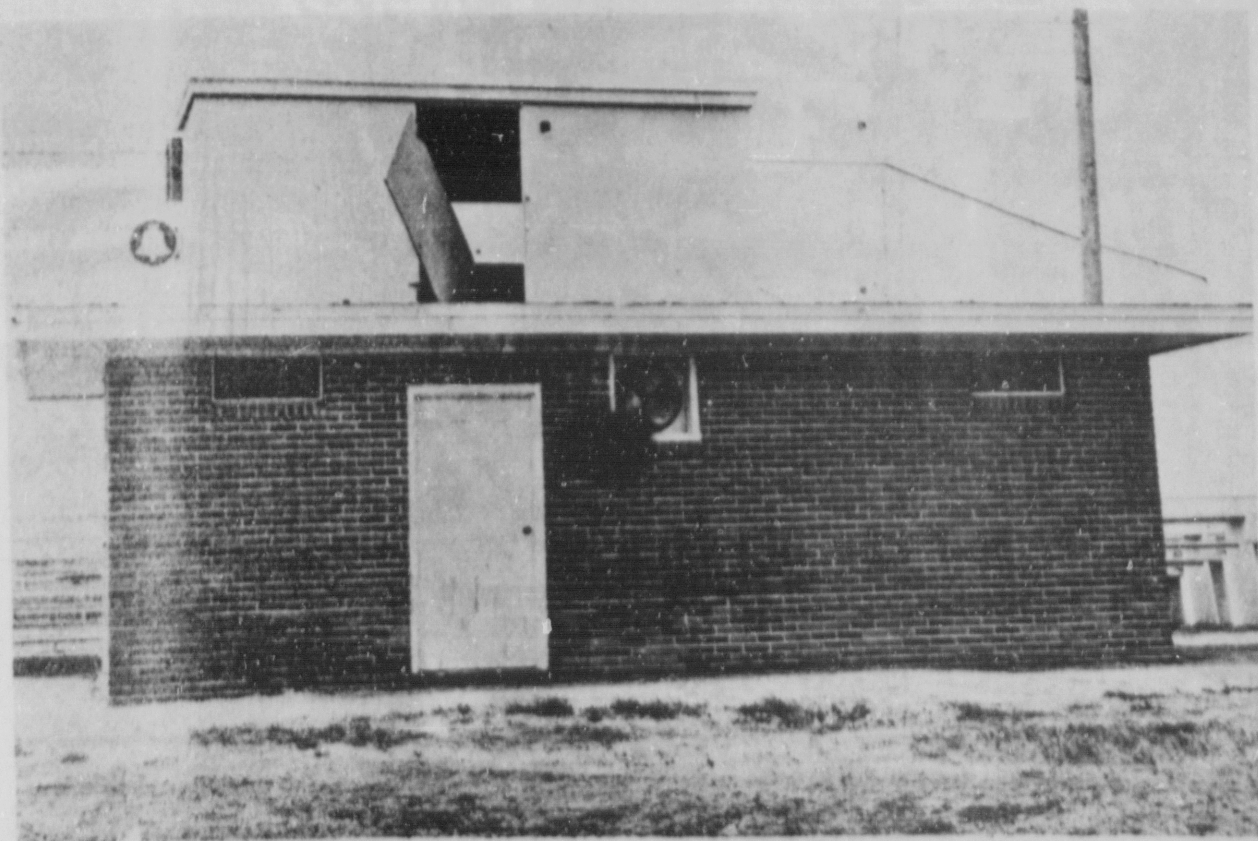

Sikeston's baseball program is on the grow, and is getting just too big for one, two or three persons to handle. It's time the city took over, money, administration and all.

Dexter Teacher Vice President

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A science and mathematics teacher at Dexter high school 10 years, John H. Ingalls, was elected Wednesday night by the assembly of delegates as first vice president of the Southeast Missouri Teachers Association.

Ingalls polled 136 votes to 42 for his nearest competitor, Raymond Hodge, an elementary principal in Arnold, who was nominated from the floor. A third candidate in the race, Wm. R. Hunter, an elementary principal at Imperial, received 12 votes.

The first vice president's position is important because the officeholder automatically succeeds to the presidency of the large teachers organization the next year. The current first vice president, Carl Wright of Sikeston, will begin his duties as president as soon as the last session of the 94th annual meeting of the association concludes here on Friday.

Wednesday night's action by the assembly of delegates was the first official function of the 94th annual meeting. The assembly, composed of one representative for the first 25 members or major fraction thereof, is the official legislative body of the teachers' association.

In other business, the assembly selected a new second vice president and new member of the executive committee, approved an amendment to the bylaws, unanimously adopted seven resolutions presented by the resolutions committee, and voted to allow candidates for the association offices to address the delegates personally at future meetings.

Marjorie Summers, a second grade teacher at Poplar Bluff, was the choice of delegates for the second vice president's post. Her opponent was Elwayne Fry, a science teacher at East Prairie.

Named to the executive committee for a three-year term was Wm. P. McKee Jr. of Cape Girardeau, a sixth-grade teacher at May Greene School. He defeated James Connolly, a counselor at Fredericktown.

The amendment to the bylaws, adopted by an overwhelming vote of 192-6, added a department of reading teachers to the association, bringing to 27 the number of departments of the organization.

Only one of the seven amendments adopted by the assembly drew any discussion, concerned teacher welfare and the Missouri State Teachers Association and is presently serving on MST's committee on sources of school revenue, the Missouri Council of Teachers of Mathematics, and the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics. He is also second vice president this year of the Southeast Missouri chapter of Phi Delta Kappa education honorary.

Ingalls is married and the father of three children. He said that industry, before making a move into a new community, needs to be assured that its employees will be satisfied in that community and that some of the most important factors are education and medical facilities and housing.

Betts gave a report on a survey of the business district of New Madrid that his company had made in connection with a comprehensive plan ordered by the New Madrid board of aldermen.

He told of possible methods of strengthening the community trade area, recommending a compact business district on Main Street for the principal types of businesses and the beautification of that area for a more inviting shopping climate. He had a detailed list of recommendations which will be studied by the board of aldermen, Chamber of Commerce and property owners with the possibility that some unified effort will be made for the suggested improvements.

In addition to these general allegations, each suit contains specific reasons given by each landowner as ground for reducing the assessment of each piece of property. These complaints, in general, include such items as land being located on the river side of the levee and therefore not worth as much as protected land. Land assessed at two or more times the amount of neighboring land; land in Spillway subject to flooding and hence not subject to as good loans as land outside the Spillway assessed the same; and other problems dealing with location of roads and ditches.

Local plaintiffs in these suits, and the amount of taxes each seek to recover from the County Collector, are as follows:

—Albert and Helen Stallings, $4,508.30,
—Joe Marion and Velma Dick, $1,260.89,
—Robert R. and Marion Childress, $383.28.

The other eight suits, all filed by Mississippi county landowners and farmers, base their claim on four points, including the "failure to reduce levies" argument used by the railroads. Their other three points include:

First, Valuation of their land is not equalized with other similar property in the county; Second, valuation of their land is not equalized with similar property in adjoining counties; and,

Third, at meetings of the County Board of Equalization the chairman of the State Tax Commission was present and dominated the deliberations of the supposedly independent county board.

7 Per Cent Business Loans Offered

NEW MADRID — Seven per cent money can be borrowed from the Bank of New Madrid if the money is to be used in modernizing or beautification of business buildings in New Madrid or for the improvement of services or upgrading of merchandise.

This was announced at a meeting of business owners and operators and property owners of New Madrid by Sam L. Hunter Jr., president of the bank. He said the bank's board of directors had authorized lending of up to $500,000 for the general improvement program.

The offer was made after a discussion of the many needs of the city in order to compete with neighboring communities for the great amount of new business being created by the recent industrial expansion. The meeting was held Tuesday night at the New Madrid Community Building and about 100 interested property owners and business and professional men attended.

Following the bank-sponsored business meeting, the board of directors announced Wednesday that the bank, in an effort to encourage new housing development in New Madrid, would make new housing loans at a rate of 7 percent, payable over a maximum 20-year term. The bank has set aside a fund of $500,000.00 for this purpose, which, together with the $500,000.00 fund for business improvement and development loans (also at 7 percent interest), constitutes a total amount of $1,000,000.00 in funds earmarked for housing and business development in New Madrid.

Hunter, Robert Riley, mayor of New Madrid, John Strinich, general manager of Noranda Aluminum, Inc., and Robert Betts of the Ganser, Nathan & Brown firm of architects and city planners of Memphis, Tenn., made talks about foreseeable needs of the community. Atty. Larry H. Rost, vice-president of the bank, served as master of ceremonies.

Betts said that his firm in a preliminary survey had determined that the downtown businesses would best serve the public by condensing the commercial core area into a three-block area.

His firm had projected the growth of the city's population to 7,500 by 1990 with an increase in sales in the city from $34 million to $19 million in 1990.

Strinich said, "Industry must do its part. We are charged with the responsibility of making a better place for our citizens to live."

He stressed the importance of educational facilities, medical facilities and housing and zoning.

Hunter, told the group of progress made in the past year, drawing attention to an additional doctor in the city and stating that two additional doctors would be on hand by July 1. He spoke also of the plans for a new clinic.

In a panel type discussion following the talks, Hunter told the businessmen that the board of directors of his bank had allocated a half million dollars at seven percent interest to be used by merchants to remodel and improve their businesses. Asked about loans for housing, Hunter told the group he would discuss this with his directors.

With Rost acting as moderator there was a discussion concerning the formation of a downtown development corporation. It was brought out that the Chamber of Commerce was now working on this project.

Hunter said the city of New Madrid can benefit from the influx of people because of the construction of the Noranda wire, rod and cable mill and its reduction plant by Kaiser Engineers on the city's industrial park only to the extent that the business people are ready to offer services. He said the bank's board of directors feels there is a need for improvement of the city's business section and that low-interest loans will help in getting those improvements made.

He mentioned current plans for betterment of the school systems since the recent reorganization, the starting of a manpower training center, plans for a large trade school, plans for a medical clinic and later a hospital and the creating of several residential subdivisions.

Mayor Riley told of the city's present programs for repair and construction of streets this year, current work being done of extension of sewer lines and establishment of a lagoon sewage treatment plant and the extension of the waterworks lines and construction of an additional water treatment plant.

The Noranda Aluminum facility is ready and filling to extend a helping hand in any improvements to New Madrid,

Tax Recovery Suits Filed at Charleston

CHARLESTON — Ten suits have been filed in Mississippi County Circuit Court seeking recovery of taxes paid under protest in 1969. County Collector C. E. Wyatt, who is holding the funds in escrow pending disposition of the suits, is named as the defendant in all 10 cases.

All 10 claim that local governing bodies failed to reduce their tax levies enough to comply with a state law which requires reduction of levies whenever the State Tax Commission orders a general assessment increase in the valuation of property.

Two of the suits, those filed by the Missouri Pacific Railroad and the St. Louis-Southwestern Railroad, base their claim for recovery primarily on this allegation.

The other eight suits, all filed by Mississippi county landowners and farmers, base their claim on four points, including the "failure to reduce levies" argument used by the railroads. Their other three points include:

In addition to these general allegations, each suit contains specific reasons given by each landowner as ground for reducing the assessment of each piece of property. These complaints, in general, include such items as land being located on the river side of the levee and therefore not worth as much as protected land. Land assessed at two or more times the amount of neighboring land; land in Spillway subject to flooding and hence not subject to as good loans as land outside the Spillway assessed the same; and other problems dealing with location of roads and ditches.

Coalition Group To Discuss Farm Program Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of 32 farm and commodity organizations planned to meet in St. Louis April 6 to discuss a "farm program crisis" in Congress, Fred Heinkel, coalition chairman, said Wednesday.

"The meeting will be an effort to show the Nixon administration the grass roots support" of the group's own farm proposals, Heinkel said.

The coalition includes the National Grange, National Farmers Union and the National Farmers Organization.

It has asked that Congress extend the present farm law with improvements in price and payment benefits to producers of major commodities.

Congressional observers believe it will be at least mid-April before the House Agriculture Committee agrees on a bill. Months have been spent on attempts to draft one.

The Nixon administration, meanwhile, led by Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin, has been calling for an easing of restraints, lower price supports, and more decisions based on world market conditions.

The National Farmers Union president, Tony Dechante, said Wednesday that administration proposals to lower prime supports and weaken controls add up to one thing: "That is lower farm income. We object. Farmers desperately need higher income."

LILBOURN — An effort to make Lilbourn known to travelers on Interstate 55 moved another step forward this week as about $983.65 so far has been raised toward a $1,500 quota for highway signs.

Harold Ponder has been designated project chairman by the Lilbourn Business Peoples Association, the group which is sponsoring the project.

Preliminary sketches call for an 8-foot by 24-foot illuminated sign facing both the north and south lanes of traffic. Lettered upon each sign will be "Lilbourn, Next Exit". This may seem to be a very large sign, but those signs pointing to New Madrid are 40 feet wide...or about 60 per cent larger.

This week Ponder has been making contact with landowners in an effort to find suitable location for each sign.

The LBP made an $800 contribution toward the goal. The balance raised so far has come from private contributions. More than $500 remains to be raised. Anyone who would like to volunteer a contribution may contact Harold Ponder.

Long Ball Game The baseball game played between Brooklyn and Boston of the National League on May 1, 1920, went 26 innings. The game was called on account of darkness after three hours and 50 minutes of play.

FOUL WEATHER FRIEND

You may not know him, but he's important to you. Sometimes he may be the difference between life and death.

Your weatherman. When he speaks about tornadoes, listen.

Listen especially for two words: watch and warning. When he issues a tornado watch, tornadoes are expected. Watch for the funnel cloud, listen for the roar. If you see it, and if there is time, telephone as quickly as possible to the Weather Bureau.

When he issues a warning, one has been sighted. Danger is imminent. Take cover below ground level, or in a strong building. Open windows, but stay away from them. Curl up and shield your head. If you are outdoors and cannot reach shelter, flatten yourself in the nearest depression.

And remember, seconds save lives.

KERSHNER-ROWE COMMENTARY

The Communist Goal

Right-thinking men and women will recoil in horror at the news that Herbert Aptheker, for ten years a member of the Communist Party's National Committee, has been appointed to head Bryn Mawr's black studies program. His experience in teaching has been limited to Communist training schools. His only claim to distinction is as an expounder of Communist doctrine.

Bryn Mawr is one of the leading women's colleges in our country. It has a distinguished history as a Quaker institution, although it has lost almost all of its connection with the Society of Friends. For many years the Quaker saint and distinguished scholar, Rufus M. Jones, was chairman of its board of trustees.

It is difficult to see even the slightest reason for the surrender of Bryn Mawr to the demand of black students that Communist Herbert Aptheker be appointed to this significant post in a distinguished and century-old women's college in Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania.

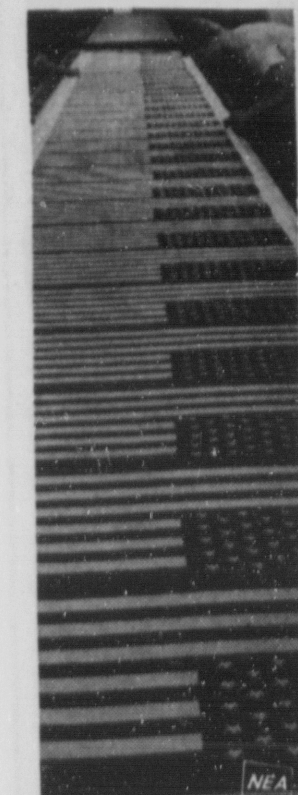

The Communists are making a tremendous effort to reach the minds of our youth with their ideological poison. The extent of their success can hardly be overestimated. They are now securely seated at Bryn Mawr and at many other institutions of higher learning in our country.

What will the end-result of all this be? If the Communists have their way, it will be the downfall of our country.

SULFUR FUMES come from new fissures in Solfatara, a volcano near Pozzuoli, Italy. Noxious fumes and constant threat of eruption have driven away more than half of the town's 70,000 residents. Pozzuoli has risen nearly two-and-a-half feet in the last six months because of a "slow earthquake" effect resulting from an expansive sea of lava lying two miles below the surface.

YARDS OF STARS and stripes are touched up by silk screen printers before being hung to dry. Flags, frankfurters, dolls, popcorn and other everyday items are featured in Hot Dog, a television special to teach children how familiar things are made.

FOUR-BEDROOM HOME is among house plans developed by the University of Missouri - in Columbia extension division. This plan, No. 23-710-C3, is available in detail at Extension centers in the state. Ralph Ricketts, UMC Extension agricultural engineer who helped develop the plan, suggests it be changed by making the carport full width of the house and placing storage at back. He also recommends projecting the roof three or four feet at front and back. This would provide covered walkways from carport to front and rear doors. Features of Plan 23-710-C3 are living room with adequate lighting, good wall space for furniture, coat closet, and no traffic through conversation area. Kitchen has efficient "L" shape close to eating area; traffic is routed away from work area. Sink and eating space are by windows. Access to bath and outdoors is easy. Central located bathroom has adequate storage. Full basement features are utility room with large work area and space for freezer, food and other storage. Family room has lots of storage. There is room for a fallout shelter if desired. A bath is convenient to the basement bedroom.

Beewax Business Shows Big Gain
WASHINGTON (AP) — The beewax business buzzed 38 per cent higher last year and produced nearly 5.5 million pounds, says the Agriculture Department.

The extra bee effort is expected to help America's womanhood look better, too, since nearly half of wax output is used in cosmetics. Another onethird is used for candles, which, in a proper setting, also can help enhance feminine beauty.

Car Hits Bernie Boy
BERNIE-A six-year-old Bernie boy suffered a broken leg and internal injuries Sunday afternoon when struck by a car near the home of his grandparents in Malden.

The child, Leonard Donvie Sanders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sanders of Bernie, underwent surgery about 9 p.m. Tuesday for the removal of his spleen, and he is expected to remain in traction with the broken leg for about two months. He also sustained bruises and lacerations about his face and hands, and stitches were required to close a cut on one finger.

If You Were the Judge Execution Does Not Void Life Insurance

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.
Putney was convicted of putting two bullets in a friend's back. After his execution, his sad wife happily presented her claim as beneficiary to collect under Putney's life insurance policy. When the company refused to pay off, Putney's widow took her claim to court.
"They've got to pay off," she told the judge. "It says right here in big print, if Putney dies, I get $10,000."
"But we can't pay her the $10,000," responded the insurance company. "It would enable a criminal to benefit from his criminal acts and that would be against public policy. By voiding policies of people lawfully executed deters other potential killers from committing murders. Remember, even criminals don't want their policies voided."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Putney's widow to take in the proceeds of Putney's life insurance policy? This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that payment under a criminal's life insurance policy in no way benefits the criminal. He's dead. If the threat of legal execution isn't sufficient to deter a criminal from committing murder, it's unlikely that the threat of having his life insurance policy voided will change his mind.

Clean-Up Drive Opens April 20

EAST PRAIRIE — Dates for the annual city-wide Spring Clean-Up campaign were announced at Tuesday night's Community Betterment meeting.

April 20 will be the starting date, according to clean-up and beautification co-chairmen, Jack Emory and Mrs. D. J. Sanders, and will continue for three weeks. The city will be divided into three sections and city trucks will make pick-ups in one of the areas each of the weeks. Joe Webb was appointed to plan publicity and possible contests to encourage residents to participate in the clean-up drive.

Mrs. Carey Johnson, chairman of the Community Betterment program, called for reports on past progress and plans for future work and improvements from the various committee chairmen.

Youth chairman, Barney Webster reported on the community attitude survey's which were taken earlier this month. Final tabulations have not been completed, however the response from city residents in filling them out has been good. Webster also discussed the possibility of starting a youth center in the city.

Mrs. Larry Kirby was appointed secretary, replacing Mrs. Vernon Pritchett who has resigned.

Mrs. Johnson said that East Prairie has met the minimum criteria for "Air Markings," however street improvements are necessary before a star in the Transportation category can be earned.

Improvements on streets, water and sewer, planning and zoning, and police department updating was reported by City Manager Glen Huntington and Councilman Jack Adkison.

Progress on Leisure time activities was reported by Mrs. Johnson, who said the Junior Civic Club will add picnic tables and the Woman's Improvement Club have donated $100 toward the purchase of erecting fireplaces in the city park. Larry Kirby, a new C. B. member was appointed to check on the cost of building the tables and fireplaces.

April 13 was set as the date for the next meeting.

Two Contests In Portageville

PORTAGEVILLE — Voters in Portageville will cast ballots Tuesday on a proposal to create a land clearance for redevelopment authority, commonly known as urban renewal.

The proposal, if passed by a simple majority, would give the city council authority to appoint a five-member board to initiate plans for urban renewal.

City elective offices to be voted on are police judge, and one alderman from each of the two city wards.

Two candidates seeking the office of police judge; two are in the race for ward one alderman; and the ward two alderman is unopposed.

Ward one voters cast ballots at the city hall, 301 E. Main; and ward two voters cast ballots at the Ark-Mo. Power building, Main and Hoffman.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett L. Ellis (Joann Brown) and sons of St. Ann, Mo., visited with Mrs. Ellis's uncle, Mr. L. P. Stark.

We have two birthdays this month. They are: Mrs. Agatha Lux, whose birthday is April 18, and Mrs. Laura Barry, whose birthday is April 30th. Mrs. Barry will be 97 years young. We wish them both a very happy birthday.

In our Arts and Crafts class we have been finishing up what we have already started. The waste baskets, bird cages, rag dolls, yarn dolls, and the nut cups for Easter. We also dyed Easter eggs and made stuffed rabbits, which were distributed among the pts. Easter Sunday along with the nut cups which were filled with after dinner mints.

Easter week was a busy time around the Retirement Home. We decided to have an Easter Egg Tree. We cut a branch of one of the Peach trees we have in the back yard. We placed the branch in a large flower pot and put it in front of the window in the lobby. Blown eggs were decorated as individual people.

We had a bride and groom, a Mexican, clowns, mod-dolls, and ladies in there Easter bonnets. Pink bows and miniature rabbits were added to complete the Easter egg tree. The Pts. all seemed to enjoy the tree very much, so we feel that it was time well spent.

Mrs. Raymond Oakes of Sikeston, visited with her friend, Mrs. Agatha Lux, Saturday.

Mrs. Myrtle Pugh of Wyatt, and Mrs. Eulene Gentles and daughter of East Prairie, visited with Mr. Elvis Pugh this weekend.

McEnerney Gets 2,325 Get 15-Year Term in Welfare Payments

SALEM Mo. (AP) — George F. McEnerney, 28, pleaded guilty Tuesday to strangling a Catholic priest in a motel room a year ago. He was sentenced to 15 years in prison.

McEnerney, of Ansonia, Conn., entered his plea to a charge of second degree murder in the death of Msgr. Howard C. Teale, 46, of St. Louis County.

The body of the priest, originally from Alexandria, La., was found in a motel room in Sullivan Mo., about 60 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Authorities launched a search for two men seen with the priest the day before his death, April 14, 1969. The priest's car was recovered in Memphis, Tenn., and McEnerney later was arrested in Derby, Conn.

Judge Roy Wells McGhee pronounced sentence after McEnerney related in a sworn statement before the court that he and a companion decided to steal the priest's money and car, that McEnerney choked the priest with his arm, then put a gag in his mouth and put the priest in a bathtub.

Prosecuting Attorney Lawrence O. Davis identified McEnerney's companion as Richard Stubbfield of Blanchard, Okla., and said he is being sought on warrants charging him with stealing the priest's car.

Howardville — Voters will cast ballots on an annexation proposal Tuesday to incorporate 33 acres in the town. A declaratory judgment ordered by Circuit Judge William L. Ragland authorized a proposed annexation of 63 acres.

Howardville City Attorney Charles Hatley said today the judgment would be amended to exclude acreage owned by J. R. Hutchison Jr., who objected to the annexation of his 30-acre property.

There are races for each city elective office. Four candidates, including one woman, have filed for the post of ward one alderman, being vacated by the incumbent.

Other offices to be filled, with two candidates filed for each, include mayor, collector, city marshal, police judge, and ward two alderman.

Balloting will be at the Howardville shopping center. Judges and clerks are Minnie Turner, Mattie Vinson, Ruby Drake, Rev. Amos Wiley, Estella Brown, Carrie Martin, Bertha Harden, Mrs. Elserine Burton, Dianne Ross and Alice Missouri.

Matthews — Voters of Matthews will cast for ballots in the Tuesday elections, City Clerk Charles Hawkins said today.

One ballot will be used for the statewide income tax referendum vote, a ballot for the county school tax vote, a ballot for the county school board vote, and a ballot to elect an alderman in ward one, and a city marshal.

Terms for the aldermen and city marshal will be two years. The polls will open at 8 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. Polling places will be ward one, high school gymnasium, and ward two, community building.

Voters can cast all four ballots at the same place this year.
